Kathleen Randall works with leaders and organizations whose success is dependent upon building trust and influence with the people they serve.

Kathleen is a communications specialist who brings insight and productivity to relationships at work and at home.

As an international speaker, corporate trainer, and executive coach, Kathleen presents over 100 programs per year to audiences in the United States, Canada, Latin America, and Europe. Kathleen's style, energy, and interactive presentations allow participants to challenge preconceived thought processes while learning and internalizing key concepts.

As CEO and co-founder of Randall Resources International, Kathleen has spoken to and trained thousands of organizations in the areas of Leadership Development, Conflict Management, Customer Service, and PR and Presentation Skills.

From her degree in Organizational Communications and Business Management, to her years of experience in corporate and non-profit Organizations, Kathleen's insight allows her to communicate proven techniques that increase team productivity, customer relationships, and leadership effectiveness.

Kathleen is President of The National Speakers Association of Kansas City and has traveled extensively with Youth for Christ. Kathleen has also served as adjunct faculty for Rockhurst University Department of Continuing Education.

Companies who have benefited from Kathleen's speaking and training include:

Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals • Burns and McDonnell Engineering • Children's Miracle Network • HelmsBrisco • John Hopkins School of Medicine • World Gospel Mission • United States Postal Service.
